

THE MEMPHIS DAILY APPEAL--TUESDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1861.

Daily Appeal. MEMPHIS.

TUESDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 8.

OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE CITY.

The Circulation of the DAILY APPEAL is larger than that of the Daily City Press Combined.

LATER FROM KENTUCKY.

Passengers, who came down from Bowling Green on yesterday, report that information has been obtained there that the enemy had received heavy reinforcements at Louisville and other points, mostly along the railroad lines. Their forces between Elizabethtown and the Ohio river is now estimated as high as 20,000—the late estimation having, as is supposed, come from the East. We cannot say that great credit should be attached to the rumor.

RELIEF TO THE PLANTERS.

There can be no manner of doubt that the bushwhakers the war are pressing more energetically upon the planter interest, than upon any other community of people in the South. They are forced, in fact, to lose their very souls. The reason for the almost sole of their cause is gradually coming around, and there being no market for the staple owing to the absence of the blockade, they find themselves without money or for the purchase of the ordinary necessities of life. They have the representatives of wealth—slaves, negroes and cotton, which, in ordinary times, command such with the most undivided facility—but such is the degree of political distrust and the indisposition of most institutions to lend in the present crisis, that they find it next to impossible to obtain currency of any character whatever.

This fact, it seems to us, explains the dire step both in government and the banks of the Confederating States to direct their energy and attention to the subject, and that the chief reliance is derived by which those patriotic efforts can be relieved. A nation now stand, they virtually need intercession from some one in their behalf.

The blue field in which the white eagle reigns is a very safe community in the United States, and, therefore, a valuable asset.

The first named detachment drove, the other's picked men followed, the third, consisting of 4000 cartridges, 25,000 caps, some guns, a lot of shoes, two wagons and teams, three horses and three prisoners, and pursued the enemy to the southward, where he was to meet the detachment of Col. Cummings, the leader of the Mississippi regiment and McNaught's cavalry to dislodge the Lincolns of the bridge at Lovelace's, and a few miles beyond, about five miles from here.

The second expedition got two hundred and twenty men—a very safe community in the United States, and, therefore, a valuable asset.

The first detachment advanced half way to Camp Dick Robinson, and may draw out a strong force in the enemy's way.

Letter from Virginia.

Correspondent of the Richmond Var. Empire says:

RICHMOND, October 4.—A little took place yesterday between the two parties who have been engaged under Gen. Jackson, and the Federalists, complete.

Gen. Jackson, who was the emblem of the noble Know-Nothing, when he fell for the liberty of Poland, is a good soldier, but of this we are not positive. He however drops the title of captain, and assumes a higher one, having been appointed to brigadier-general in the Provisional army of the Confederate States, and is serving in the same of New Orleans.

THE CONFEDERATE FLAG.—An Alabama correspondent of the Richmond Var. Empire says:

LEXINGTON, October 4.—A little took place yesterday between the two parties who have been engaged under Gen. Jackson, and the Federalists, complete.

Gen. Jackson, who was the emblem of the noble Know-Nothing, when he fell for the liberty of Poland, is a good soldier, but of this we are not positive. He however drops the title of captain, and assumes a higher one, having been appointed to brigadier-general in the Provisional army of the Confederate States, and is serving in the same of New Orleans.

THE RICHMOND DISPATCH.—John C. Breckinridge, Col. Hodges of Ky., Maj. Wash Morgan, of 3d regiment Tennessee, volume with Mrs. E. L. McElroy, Hon. T. N. Walls, of the Confederate Congress, Hon. T. A. Nelson, and several other prominent gentlemen, arrived at the 4th regt. of East Tennessee volunteers—Col. Powell's. In response to the repeated calls of a vast and enthusiastic crowd, he appeared and returned to shun the scenes of our battles; but a dispatch just received says that the report is incorrect to be false.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE IN TENNESSEE.—Hon. John C. Breckinridge, Col. Hodges of Ky., Maj. Wash Morgan, of 3d regiment Tennessee, volume with Mrs. E. L. McElroy, Hon. T. N. Walls, of the Confederate Congress, Hon. T. A. Nelson, and several other prominent gentlemen, arrived at the 4th regt. of East Tennessee volunteers—Col. Powell's. In response to the repeated calls of a vast and enthusiastic crowd, he appeared and returned to shun the scenes of our battles; but a dispatch just received says that the report is incorrect to be false.

COL. A. G. BLANCHARD, of Louisiana, has been promoted to a brigadier-general in the provisional army.

MASON'S FIDELITY.—It is stated upon good authority, that when Hampton, Va., was taken possession of by the Federals, while they were laying their vandal hands upon everything, plowing or destroying whatever came in their way. When ever anything shamed and evil it was under their power to do so, and when they were laid low under their heel, that they were to be avenged.

THE NEW ORLEANS Delta.—A journal which has paid a judicious attention to the subject—we observe the following from a correspondent:

"The boldness of underwriters, in their circular of July 23, previous to insure against the loss of slaves on their ships, and the fact that they will not buy any slaves and advertise that they will not do so, gives the owners of cotton with whom this insurance policy attached, a right to the payment of the sum of the premium."

"A sum of $10,000,000, or $80,000,000, they would advance $20,000,000, which would ample security, and if it can be obtained, it will be easily advanced."

"The New Orleans Delta—a journal which has paid a judicious attention to the subject—we observe the following from a correspondent:

"The boldness of underwriters, in their circular of July 23, previous to insure against the loss of slaves on their ships, and the fact that they will not buy any slaves and advertise that they will not do so, gives the owners of cotton with whom this insurance policy attached, a right to the payment of the sum of the premium."

"A sum of $10,000,000, or $80,000,000, they would advance $20,000,000, which would ample security, and if it can be obtained, it will be easily advanced."

"The New Orleans Delta—a journal which has paid a judicious attention to the subject—we observe the following from a correspondent:

"The boldness of underwriters, in their circular of July 23, previous to insure against the loss of slaves on their ships, and the fact that they will not buy any slaves and advertise that they will not do so, gives the owners of cotton with whom this insurance policy attached, a right to the payment of the sum of the premium."

"A sum of $10,000,000, or $80,000,000, they would advance $20,000,000, which would ample security, and if it can be obtained, it will be easily advanced."

"The New Orleans Delta—a journal which has paid a judicious attention to the subject—we observe the following from a correspondent:

"The boldness of underwriters, in their circular of July 23, previous to insure against the loss of slaves on their ships, and the fact that they will not buy any slaves and advertise that they will not do so, gives the owners of cotton with whom this insurance policy attached, a right to the payment of the sum of the premium."

"A sum of $10,000,000, or $80,000,000, they would advance $20,000,000, which would ample security, and if it can be obtained, it will be easily advanced."

"The New Orleans Delta—a journal which has paid a judicious attention to the subject—we observe the following from a correspondent:

"The boldness of underwriters, in their circular of July 23, previous to insure against the loss of slaves on their ships, and the fact that they will not buy any slaves and advertise that they will not do so, gives the owners of cotton with whom this insurance policy attached, a right to the payment of the sum of the premium."

"A sum of $10,000,000, or $80,000,000, they would advance $20,000,000, which would ample security, and if it can be obtained, it will be easily advanced."

"The New Orleans Delta—a journal which has paid a judicious attention to the subject—we observe the following from a correspondent:

"The boldness of underwriters, in their circular of July 23, previous to insure against the loss of slaves on their ships, and the fact that they will not buy any slaves and advertise that they will not do so, gives the owners of cotton with whom this insurance policy attached, a right to the payment of the sum of the premium."

"A sum of $10,000,000, or $80,000,000, they would advance $20,000,000, which would ample security, and if it can be obtained, it will be easily advanced."

"The New Orleans Delta—a journal which has paid a judicious attention to the subject—we observe the following from a correspondent:

"The boldness of underwriters, in their circular of July 23, previous to insure against the loss of slaves on their ships, and the fact that they will not buy any slaves and advertise that they will not do so, gives the owners of cotton with whom this insurance policy attached, a right to the payment of the sum of the premium."

"A sum of $10,000,000, or $80,000,000, they would advance $20,000,000, which would ample security, and if it can be obtained, it will be easily advanced."

"The New Orleans Delta—a journal which has paid a judicious attention to the subject—we observe the following from a correspondent:

"The boldness of underwriters, in their circular of July 23, previous to insure against the loss of slaves on their ships, and the fact that they will not buy any slaves and advertise that they will not do so, gives the owners of cotton with whom this insurance policy attached, a right to the payment of the sum of the premium."

"A sum of $10,000,000, or $80,000,000, they would advance $20,000,000, which would ample security, and if it can be obtained, it will be easily advanced."

"The New Orleans Delta—a journal which has paid a judicious attention to the subject—we observe the following from a correspondent:

"The boldness of underwriters, in their circular of July 23, previous to insure against the loss of slaves on their ships, and the fact that they will not buy any slaves and advertise that they will not do so, gives the owners of cotton with whom this insurance policy attached, a right to the payment of the sum of the premium."

"A sum of $10,000,000, or $80,000,000, they would advance $20,000,000, which would ample security, and if it can be obtained, it will be easily advanced."

"The New Orleans Delta—a journal which has paid a judicious attention to the subject—we observe the following from a correspondent:

"The boldness of underwriters, in their circular of July 23, previous to insure against the loss of slaves on their ships, and the fact that they will not buy any slaves and advertise that they will not do so, gives the owners of cotton with whom this insurance policy attached, a right to the payment of the sum of the premium."

"A sum of $10,000,000, or $80,000,000, they would advance $20,000,000, which would ample security, and if it can be obtained, it will be easily advanced."

"The New Orleans Delta—a journal which has paid a judicious attention to the subject—we observe the following from a correspondent:

"The boldness of underwriters, in their circular of July 23, previous to insure against the loss of slaves on their ships, and the fact that they will not buy any slaves and advertise that they will not do so, gives the owners of cotton with whom this insurance policy attached, a right to the payment of the sum of the premium."

"A sum of $10,000,000, or $80,000,000, they would advance $20,000,000, which would ample security, and if it can be obtained, it will be easily advanced."

"The New Orleans Delta—a journal which has paid a judicious attention to the subject—we observe the following from a correspondent:

"The boldness of underwriters, in their circular of July 23, previous to insure against the loss of slaves on their ships, and the fact that they will not buy any slaves and advertise that they will not do so, gives the owners of cotton with whom this insurance policy attached, a right to the payment of the sum of the premium."

"A sum of $10,000,000, or $80,000,000, they would advance $20,000,000, which would ample security, and if it can be obtained, it will be easily advanced."

"The New Orleans Delta—a journal which has paid a judicious attention to the subject—we observe the following from a correspondent:

"The boldness of underwriters, in their circular of July 23, previous to insure against the loss of slaves on their ships, and the fact that they will not buy any slaves and advertise that they will not do so, gives the owners of cotton with whom this insurance policy attached, a right to the payment of the sum of the premium."

"A sum of $10,000,000, or $80,000,000, they would advance $20,000,000, which would ample security, and if it can be obtained, it will be easily advanced."

"The New Orleans Delta—a journal which has paid a judicious attention to the subject—we observe the following from a correspondent:

"The boldness of underwriters, in their circular of July 23, previous to insure against the loss of slaves on their ships, and the fact that they will not buy any slaves and advertise that they will not do so, gives the owners of cotton with whom this insurance policy attached, a right to the payment of the sum of the premium."

"A sum of $10,000,000, or $80,000,000, they would advance $20,000,000, which would ample security, and if it can be obtained, it will be easily advanced."

"The New Orleans Delta—a journal which has paid a judicious attention to the subject—we observe the following from a correspondent:

"The boldness of underwriters, in their circular of July 23, previous to insure against the loss of slaves on their ships, and the fact that they will not buy any slaves and advertise that they will not do so, gives the owners of cotton with whom this insurance policy attached, a right to the payment of the sum of the premium."

"A sum of $10,000,000, or $80,000,000, they would advance $20,000,000, which would ample security, and if it can be obtained, it will be easily advanced."

"The New Orleans Delta—a journal which has paid a judicious attention to the subject—we observe the following from a correspondent:

"The boldness of underwriters, in their circular of July 23, previous to insure against the loss of slaves on their ships, and the fact that they will not buy any slaves and advertise that they will not do so, gives the owners of cotton with whom this insurance policy attached, a right to the payment of the sum of the premium."

"A sum of $10,000,000, or $80,000,000, they would advance $20,000,000, which would ample security, and if it can be obtained, it will be easily advanced."

"The New Orleans Delta—a journal which has paid a judicious attention to the subject—we observe the following from a correspondent:

"The boldness of underwriters, in their circular of July 23, previous to insure against the loss of slaves on their ships, and the fact that they will not buy any slaves and advertise that they will not do so, gives the owners of cotton with whom this insurance policy attached, a right to the payment of the sum of the premium."

"A sum of $10,000,000, or $80,000,000, they would advance $20,000,000, which would ample security, and if it can be obtained, it will be easily advanced."

"The New Orleans Delta—a journal which has paid a judicious attention to the subject—we observe the following from a correspondent:

"The boldness of underwriters, in their circular of July 23, previous to insure against the loss of slaves on their ships, and the fact that they will not buy any slaves and advertise that they will not do so, gives the owners of cotton with whom this insurance policy attached, a right to the payment of the sum of the premium."

"A sum of $10,000,000, or $80,000,000, they would advance $20,000,000, which would ample security, and if it can be obtained, it will be easily advanced."

"The New Orleans Delta—a journal which has paid a judicious attention to the subject—we observe the following from a correspondent:

"The boldness of underwriters, in their circular of July 23, previous to insure against the loss of slaves on their ships, and the fact that they will not buy any slaves and advertise that they will not do so, gives the owners of cotton with whom this insurance policy attached, a right to the payment of the sum of the premium."

"A sum of $10,000,000, or $80,000,000, they would advance $20,000,000, which would ample security, and if it can be obtained, it will be easily advanced."

"The New Orleans Delta—a journal which has paid a judicious attention to the subject—we observe the following from a correspondent:

"The boldness of underwriters, in their circular of July 23, previous to insure against the loss of slaves on their ships, and the fact that they will not buy any slaves and advertise that they will not do so, gives the owners of cotton with whom this insurance policy attached, a right to the payment of the sum of the premium."

"A sum of $10,000,000, or $80,000,000, they would advance $20,000,000, which would ample security, and if it can be obtained, it will be easily advanced."

"The New Orleans Delta—a journal which has paid a judicious attention to the subject—we observe the following from a correspondent:

"The boldness of underwriters, in their circular of July 23, previous to insure against the loss of slaves on their ships, and the fact that they will not buy any slaves and advertise that they will not do so, gives the owners of cotton with whom this insurance policy attached, a right to the payment of the sum of the premium."

"A sum of $10,000,000, or $80,000,000, they would advance $20,000,000, which would ample security, and if it can be obtained, it will be easily advanced."

"The New Orleans Delta—a journal which has paid a judicious attention to the subject—we observe the following from a correspondent:

"The boldness of underwriters, in their circular of July 23, previous to insure against the loss of slaves on their ships, and the fact that they will not buy any slaves and advertise that they will not do so, gives the owners of cotton with whom this insurance policy attached, a right to the payment of the sum of the premium."

"A sum of $10,000,000, or $80,000,000, they would advance $